CANDIDATE NAME:
Hamutenya Hafeni
Paulus Hainghumbi

RESEARCH TITLE: EXPLORING EMPLOYEES' VIEWS AND EXPERIENCES ON THE CONTRIBUTION OF FOREIGN DIRECT INVESTMENT TO KNOWLEDGE AND SKILLS TRANSFER AT DIAMOND NAMIBIA, WINDHOEK

Supervisor: Dr. Metusalem Nakale

ABOUT THE CANDIDATE

The candidate hails from Omukoko Village, a few kilometres from Outapi, in Omusati region. He has obtained all his qualifications from The International University of Management specialising in Human Resources Development and Management. Among other qualifications, he is a holder of a Master of Business Administration in Human Resources, and an Honours Degree in Human Resources Development and Management. The candidate is an experienced Human Resource Practitioner and is currently serving as the Deputy Director of Human Resources at The International University of Management.

SUMMARY OF THE STUDY

The study explored the contribution of Foreign Direct Investment to knowledge and skills transfer in the Namibian Diamond Industry. The study was underpinned by a constructivism research paradigm, which employed the use of qualitative research methods. A case study design was used to explore knowledge and skills transfer in the diamond industry. Albert Bandura's Social Learning Theory was used to provide the required theoretical strength for understanding knowledge and skills transfer in the diamond industry. The population consisted of employees in the Diamond industry. Non-probability sampling method was used to select the sample, carried out through the use of purposive sampling technique. Individual interviews were used to collect data from the sample. The textual collected data attracted a thematic analysis method, which was carried out manually and established key themes.

Key findings revealed that Foreign Direct Investment makes a significant contribution to knowledge and skills transfer in the Diamond industry. Foreign investment has provided opportunities to foreign investors to transfer knowledge and skills to local people as employees, ensuring a symbiotic relationship that benefits both foreign investors having access to investment opportunities in the local market, as well as local people getting exposure to needed expertise from foreigner investors. Hence, Foreign Direct Investment serves as a conduit for the transfer of knowledge and skills from international investors to local Namibian people. Even though Foreign Direct Investment presents mutual beneficial opportunities to both investors and local people, there are challenges facing the efficient knowledge and skills transfer in the sector. Communication barriers has continued to hamper effective communication in transferring knowledge from foreign investors to local people. Communication barrier is further compounded by cultural differences existing between foreign and local cultural orientations. To ensure an efficient and effective knowledge and skills transfer that is Foreign Direct Investment-driven, the results of the study were used to advance strategies for optimising effective knowledge and skills transfer processes in the context of Foreign Direct Investment. Key strategies include the design and development of communication programmes to facilitate effective communication between foreign investors and local people as employees, as well as embracing cross-cultural exposure in facilitating knowledge and skills transfer in the sector. The study implores Foreign Direct Investment companies to consider implementing the strategies to facilitate and improve effective knowledge and skills transfer. The strategies for optimising knowledge and skills transfer through a Foreign Direct Investment-driven approach, are the study's unique contribution to the field of Business Management.

CANDIDATE NAME:
Ambrosius Hinanentu
Ipinge

SUMMARY OF THE STUDY

The aim of the study was to develop a comprehensive framework for promoting sustainable housing options for low and middle-income earners in Windhoek. A mixed methods research methodology was used to carry out the study. The population consisted of low and middle-income earners in Windhoek, and the employees of key stakeholders with interest in the housings sector, namely, City of Windhoek, National Housing Enterprise, and the Ministry of Urban and Rural Development. The data was collected by using questionnaires administered to low and middle-income earners, as well as with interviews conducted with the sample from the key stakeholders with an interest in the housing sector. The Statistical Package for Social Sciences was used to perform descriptive and correlation analyses of the quantitative data, and determine the main drivers of housing affordability, accessibility and adequacy. The Word Cloud tool in NVivo was used to analyse and represent the qualitative data and find the key determinants of housing problems among low and middle-income earners.

The t-statistic value of 2.6791 indicates a substantial correlation between government policy and the affordability of housing for low and middle-income earners in Windhoek. The t-statistic value of 2.5863 suggests a significant link between social infrastructure and the adequacy of housing for low and middle-income earners in Windhoek. This implies that there is a correlation between social infrastructure such as amenities, recreational facilities, medical and health services, playgrounds for children, and the sufficiency of housing for low and middle-income earners in Windhoek. Additionally, the t-statistic value of 2.6475 suggests a significant link between neighbourhood facilities and accessibility of housing for low and middle-income earners in Windhoek. The results of the study were used to develop a housing sustainability framework, compounded with theoretical strengths from the Five-steps Approach Stakeholders Engagement model. The developed framework provides direction to stakeholders in the housing sector in managing the sustainability of housing for low and middle-income earners.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY IN SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

CANDIDATE NAME:
Adetunji Anthony
Adeyanju

RESEARCH TITLE: A HOLISTIC MEASURE OF PROGRESS
TOWARD ECONOMIC WELLBEING AND SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT IN NAMIBIA

Supervisor: Dr. Blessing Tafirenyika

ABOUT THE CANDIDATE:

Originating from Lagos, Nigeria, the candidate has built a distinguished academic and professional career rooted in economics. He attained both his Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Economics from the University of Pune, India, where he honed his analytical skills and developed a keen understanding of economic theories and practices. Further enriching his educational background, he acquired a Postgraduate Diploma in Higher Education from The International University of Management, which equipped him with advanced pedagogical strategies tailored for higher education. Presently, the candidate is an Economics and Statistics lecturer at The International University of Management, with research and publication interests in building a wellbeing economy and promoting sustainable development.

SUMMARY OF THE STUDY

The research evaluated the effectiveness of the Namibia Wellbeing Index (NWI) as a metric for gauging progress towards the goals of a wellbeing economy and sustainable development. Employing a pragmatic worldview, the study explored both the Namibian government's and residents' perceptions of progress towards these goals. The (NWI) was developed through Principal Component Analysis (PCA) and compared with Namibia's Gross Domestic Product (GDP) to assess the nation's sustainability strides. The study used thematic analysis to evaluate government views on a wellbeing economy, and content discourse analysis (CDA) to scrutinize the Presidents' State of the Nation Address (SONA), which details governmental sustainability strategies. Additionally, descriptive analysis captured the residents' perspectives on the wellbeing economy.

The study's findings indicate a strong governmental commitment to sustainable development, alongside a readiness to integrate new sustainability metrics. The citizens' views on sustainability were varied. The NWI, which integrates eight key indicators based on the Genuine Progress index (GPI) framework, offers a comprehensive understanding of the economy compared to GDP alone. The NWI highlights resilience over the 11 years (2011-2021) under study; it captures the dynamism of the social, economic, and environmental progress of Namibia toward sustainability. The research concludes that alongside GDP, the NWI provides a comprehensive framework for measuring sustainable progress. It recommends Namibia pursue an eco-growth economy, foster green jobs, and promote a wellbeing economy to advance towards a sustainable and prosperous society.
